Foreword

Welcome to Palgrave Macmillan’s catalog for Journals, Online Resources and Reference 2010.

With new web technologies and applications being developed at a significant pace and academic research growing rapidly, we have an exciting time ahead working to provide the very best content and user interfaces to libraries and their patrons.

In 2009 we launched our ebook platform, Palgrave Connect, offering libraries a flexible approach to building an ebook collection in the Humanities, the Social Sciences and Business. Over 4000 Palgrave Macmillan ebooks are available in collections organized by year of publication and by discipline. Palgrave Connect is powered by our sister company, Nature Publishing Group’s (NPG’s) award-winning online platform, nature.com, alongside Palgrave Macmillan journals.

Over recent years Palgrave Macmillan’s journals list has grown significantly, as more academic societies choose our publishing platform, based on our commitment to quality and customer service, and as we launch more titles. As we grow, we have been looking at ways to best meet the developing needs of our subscribers, and we are now selling online access to our journals as Site Licenses via NPG.

Site License access provides additional user benefits, including extensive linking, sophisticated searching, content feeds and advance online publication. For libraries, the advantages include: fairly-priced access, based on number of users not on number of sites; access to current content and a selected archive; post-cancellation rights; and desktop access for unlimited concurrent users. NPG offers years of experience in providing Site Licenses to libraries. With representatives working out of offices on four continents, we are able to offer a very high-level of customer services and meet effectively the needs of our customers around the globe.

Several of our key reference works are now available as online resources, with access via Site Licenses: The New Palgrave Dictionary of Economics Online, The Statesman’s Yearbook Online and the World Higher Education Database Online. Details of these online resources are also included in the catalog.

For the first time this year we have included details of our print reference products alongside our journals and online resources, enabling you to browse all our major library works in one place. This also shows our continuing commitment to producing high-quality print reference works, whilst demonstrating our overall company strategy to increase our online portfolio, thus offering our customers increased choice.

Yours faithfully

SITE LICENSE ACCESS TO PALGRAVE MACMILLAN ONLINE RESOURCES PROVIDES USERS WITH:

- 24/7 access to members of subscribing institutions, outside library opening hours, on the move, at home or at their desk.
- Archives – for complete peace of mind, our ebook and journal content is preserved in the Portico repository.
- COUNTER-compliant usage reports – consistent, credible and compatible usage reports are provided for most Palgrave Macmillan online products, conforming to the international code of practice.
- Post-cancellation rights – Journals and Palgrave Connect site license customers can retain access to licensed content, subject to payment of an annual access fee, should an agreement be cancelled.
- Dynamic customer services – online help pages for support and trained support staff contactable by telephone or email.
- See individual titles for further details of online functionality, including citation tools, linking, personalization and federated search capabilities.

PALGRAVE MACMILLAN JOURNALS ONLINE

Additionally, online access to Palgrave Macmillan Journals (www.palgrave-journals.com/) provides users with:

- Fully searchable content across the Palgrave Macmillan portfolio. Access full text HTML or PDF articles with a site license or as a single article purchase.
- Archives – we have already invested in significant digitization of back archives, which can be purchased separately. See individual titles for details.
- Advance Online Publication (AOP) – the latest research papers published online ahead of print publication, for selected titles.
- We now offer an enhanced search function – faster and more precise – made possible by our adoption of Mark Logic Server as our xml repository.
- Reference linking within and beyond Palgrave Macmillan – article references link to full-text repositories and full abstracting services such as ISI Web of Science, and Medline (PubMed) for further reading.
- ATHENS authentication compliance – secure remote access. Users can log in directly from palgrave-journals.com or through their MyAthens account.
- An array of advanced functionality at the article level including:
  - linking via CrossRef to citing articles;
  - ‘More articles like this’ feature: highlighting related articles;
  - supplementary information: datasets, animation and video;
  - ‘Export citation’: a valuable service enabling users to download key information into personal bibliographic databases.

- Content listed in CrossRef Search – Palgrave Macmillan’s involvement in CrossRef Search provides researchers with the ability to find the highest quality research across multiple publishers faster and more effectively.

Asian Business & Management

www.palgrave-journals.com/abm/

General Editor: Harukiyo Hasegawa, Doshisha University, Japan/University of Sheffield, UK

2010: VOLUME 9 • 4 ISSUES PER VOLUME
Print ISSN: 1472-4782 Online ISSN: 1476-9328

Impact Factor: ABM has been recently accepted for coverage by Thomson Reuters Social Sciences Citation Index. Impact Factor will follow in due course.

Asian Business & Management is published in association with Euro-Asia Management Studies Association (EAMSA), Japan Academy of Labor and Management (JALM), Japan Society of Business Administration (JSBA) and Association of Japanese Business Studies (AJBS).

Aims and Scope:

Asian Business & Management provides a unique perspective on business and management issues, both within Asia and between Asia and the wider world. Adopting a range of disciplinary and methodological approaches, it is critical reading for a broad global audience with an interest in this dynamic subject.

Asia’s place in the economic order has been driven by the dynamic interaction of global capital and regional and local forces. Rapid growth and swift financial downturn require rigorous scholarly attention. Asia’s socio-economic conditions are patently different from those of the West: a re-examination of functional Anglo-American approaches and the ‘Asian values model’ are called for.

Asia offers good grounds for the study of business and management. Currently the leading journals in the field deal with Asia by looking in from the outside. In contrast, Asian Business & Management (ABM) will create a new forum for the scholarly community by focusing upon Asia and by encouraging the interaction of Asian academics and those from beyond the region.

Online Features and Site License Access:

• Online archive available back to 2002.
• A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Aims and Scope:

BioSocieties is committed to the scholarly exploration of the social, ethical and policy implications of developments in the life sciences and biomedicine. These developments are increasing our ability to control our own biology; enabling us to create novel life forms; changing our ideas of 'normality' and 'abnormality'; transforming our understanding of personal identity, family relations, ancestry and 'race'; altering our social and personal expectations and responsibilities; reshaping global economic opportunities and inequalities; creating new global security challenges; and generating new social, ethical, legal and regulatory dilemmas.

BioSocieties provides a crucial forum where the most rigorous social research and critical analysis of these issues can intersect with the work of leading scientists, social researchers, clinicians, regulators and other stakeholders. BioSocieties defines the key intellectual issues at the science-society interface, and offers pathways to the resolution of the critical local, national and global socio-political challenges that arise from scientific and biomedical advances.

BioSocieties is published quarterly, with occasional themed issues that highlight some of the critical questions facing biotechnologies. Articles, response pieces, book reviews, and self-standing editorial pieces by social and life scientists form a regular part of the journal.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 2006
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

British Politics

Editors: Steven Kettell (Executive Editor), University of Warwick, UK; Peter Kerr (Executive Editor), University of Birmingham, UK; Colin Hay, University of Sheffield, UK and David Marsh, Australian National University, Australia

2010: VOLUME 5 • 4 ISSUES PER VOLUME
Print ISSN: 1746-918X Online ISSN: 1746-9198

Aims and Scope:

British Politics offers the only forum explicitly designed to promote research in British political studies, and seeks to provide a counterweight to the growing fragmentation of this field during recent years. To this end, the journal aims to promote a more holistic understanding of British politics by encouraging a closer integration between theoretical and empirical research, between historical and contemporary analyses, and by fostering a conception of British politics as a broad and multi-disciplinary field of study. This incorporates a range of sub-fields, including psephology, policy analysis, regional studies, comparative politics, institutional analysis, political theory, political economy, historical analysis, cultural studies and social policy.

Online Features and Site License Access:

• Online archive available back to 2006.

• A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

• Users benefit from all the online features outlined on page 5.

• British Politics is indexed and/or abstracted in: International Political Science Abstracts; Sociological Abstracts; Worldwide Political Science Abstracts; Gale; SwetsWise; OCLC; Infotrieve.
Aims and Scope

We live in unprecedented economic times. It’s now more crucial than ever to have access to clear, cogent analysis and insightful commentary about the economy and the economic outlook for business. Business Economics is compelling reading for all of those with a practical interest in how economics is used within business, and serves as an essential source of practical information for people who apply economics in their jobs. It fulfils this purpose by:

• providing a leading forum for debating solutions to critical business problems and the analysis of key business issues.

• providing best-practice models, tools and hands-on techniques from professionals in business.

• representing an important channel for summaries of action-oriented analysis aimed at solving business problems.

• giving insight into how to apply economics within business and how economic professionals respond to challenges in the workplace; and

• representing and interpreting current economic information and issues that are educational and useful on the job.

Online Features and Site License Access:

• Online archive available back to 2005

• A site license provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

• Users benefit from all the online features outlined on page 3

• Business Economics is indexed and/or abstracted in: ABS Academic Journal Quality Guide; SwetsWise, Econlit; Econis (Online Catalog of the ZBW, German National Library of Economics); Infotrieve; ABI/Inform from ProQuest; Business Source Elite (from EBSCO); RePEc (Research Papers in Economics).
Comparative Economic Studies

www.palgrave-journals.com/ces/

Editors: Josef C. Brada, Arizona State University, USA and Paul Wachtel, New York University, USA

2010: VOLUME 52 • 4 ISSUES PER VOLUME
Print ISSN: 0888-7233 Online ISSN: 1478-3320

Comparative Economic Studies is a journal of the Association for Comparative Economic Studies

Aims and Scope:

Comparative Economic Studies focuses on theoretical and policy issues faced by economies which were formerly centrally-planned. It also deals with the debates faced by both emerging and mature market economies; the latter are examined in the light of new circumstances and the need for institutional change. These analyses may be comparative in nature or, equally, may deal with a single country. They may be at the macro level or at the level of individual institutions and economic units. The journal particularly welcomes studies which aim to analyze institutions and policies for economic transition and restructuring.

Online Features and Site License Access:

• Online archive available back to 1991.
• A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.
• Users benefit from all the online features outlined on page 5.
• Comparative Economic Studies is indexed and/or abstracted in: Economic Literature Index; International Bibliography of the Social Sciences; (IBZ) - International Bibliography of Periodical Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences; (IBR) - International Bibliography of Book Reviews of Scholarly Literature on the Humanities and Social Sciences; RePEc (Research Papers in Economics); SwetsWise; OCLC; Infotrieve; SCOPUS.
Aims and Scope:

Comparative European Politics arises out of a unique editorial partnership linking political scientists in Europe and North America. Comparative European Politics is a major international peer-reviewed journal on the comparative politics and political economy of the whole of contemporary Europe within and beyond the European Union, the processes of European integration and enlargement and the place of Europe and European states within international/global political and economic dynamics.

Spanning political science, international relations and global political economy, the journal provides an international and interdisciplinary forum for research, theory and debate.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 2003.
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Aims and Scope:

Committed to excellence in scholarship and accessibility, Contemporary Political Theory is a significant and distinctive addition to the top rank of international, peer-reviewed journals in political philosophy and theory. Contemporary Political Theory reflects the diversity of the subject by encompassing a wide range of approaches and a rich selection of styles.

The central focus of CPT is on publishing contributions to contemporary theory, though informed by historical experience with submissions on past thinkers and thought welcomed where they bear upon current philosophical and political concerns.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 2002.
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Aims and Scope:

The Corporate Reputation Review was launched in 1997 and publishes four issues on corporate reputation every year. It invites original research that explores the relationships between corporate reputation and strategic positioning: corporate identity, communications, and image; branding and profiling; valuation and performance.

Each issue delivers an intelligent and stimulating mix of:

- Industry Surveys
- Leading-edge Thinking
- Robust Research

...to address the key questions of how corporate reputations impact on a company’s performance and its value; how corporate reputation can be measured; and how it can be managed. The manuscripts published in Corporate Reputation Review are subjected to double-blinded refereeing.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 1997.
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

Aims and Scope:

Crime Prevention & Community Safety is at the forefront of its field. It aims to facilitate the exchange of expertise and experience, to promote good practice and to help identify successful strategies for addressing issues of crime prevention and community safety. Papers introduce new approaches, re-evaluate traditional theories and methods, and report on the latest research.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 1999.

Aims and Scope:

Since 1957 Development has explored the cutting edge issues of human centred development. With alternative perspectives on civil society, development policy and community based strategies for livelihoods, gender and social justice, Development keeps readers up-to-date on the challenging issues of today’s rapidly changing world.

Development aims to be a unique resource and point of reference for the dialogue between activists and intellectuals committed to the search for alternative paths of social transformation towards a more sustainable and just world; tackle the hard hitting issues of today, listening to the oppositional voices and bringing in local and innovative perspectives from the margins to the global development discourse.

Online Features and Site License Access:

Aims and Scope:

The Eastern Economic Journal was established in 1973. The EEJ publishes papers written from every perspective, in all areas of economics and is committed to free and open intellectual inquiry from diverse philosophical perspectives. It welcomes manuscripts that are methodological and philosophical as well as empirical and theoretical. Readability and general interest are major factors in publication decision.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 2007.
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

The European Journal of Development Research is the official journal of the European Association of Development Research and Training Institutes (EADI)

Aims and Scope:
The European Journal of Development Research is a peer-reviewed academic journal that seeks to address the problems of development, whether from a political, sociological, anthropological or economic perspective. The EJDR is deliberately interdisciplinary in nature, and is especially interested in papers that address challenges for policy makers, funding agencies, NGOs and practitioners. EJDR has a particular interest in research addressing important issues that transcend the boundaries of single academic disciplines and development functions.
The European Journal of Development Research understands development to be a broadly defined concept. Although a majority of the papers published examine the challenges for developing countries, we recognize that human development is a continuous process, and that there are important lessons to be derived from the experiences of less-developed regions in the developed world.

European Political Science is a journal of the European Consortium for Political Research.

Aims and Scope:

European Political Science (EPS) is an international journal devoted to publishing contributions by and for the political science community. Its interpretation of “political science” is wide and encompasses comparative politics, political economy, international relations, public administration, political theory, European studies and related disciplines.

It publishes pieces on how the discipline is, can be and ought to be.

EPS also includes more substantive pieces that provide a political science perspective on important current events. In addition to original articles, the journal carries shorter notes, review articles and symposia, progress reports on lively areas of research and profiles of people in the profession.

Online Features and Site License Access:

• Online archive available to purchase back to 2005. 2001-2004 archive hosted via Society website.

Aims and Scope:

Feminist Review is a peer-reviewed, interdisciplinary journal setting new agendas for the analysis of the social world. Currently based in London with an international scope, Feminist Review invites critical reflection on the relationship between materiality and representation, theory and practice, subjectivity and communities, contemporary and historical formations. The Feminist Review Collective is committed to exploring gender in its multiple forms and interrelationships. As well as academic articles we publish experimental pieces, visual and textual media and political interventions, including, for example, interviews, short stories, poems and photographic essays.

When Feminist Review first appeared in 1979 it described itself as a socialist and feminist journal, ‘a vehicle to unite research and theory with political practice, and contribute to the development of both’. Challenges of race, class and sexuality have been central to the development of the journal. More than thirty years later, Feminist Review remains committed to these core values.

French Politics

www.palgrave-journals.com/fp/

Editors: Andrew Appleton, Washington State University, USA and Robert Elgie, Dublin City University, Republic of Ireland
2010: VOLUME 8 • 4 ISSUES PER VOLUME
Print ISSN: 1476-3419 Online ISSN: 1476-3427

Aims and Scope:
In recent times, the study of France has been changing. Globalization, Europeanization, and interdependence have meant that it is less easy to see developments in contemporary France in a purely national context. External factors have intruded on the French political system. In the academic context the trend towards large-scale collaboration in comparative projects has meant an increasing opportunity for bringing France into the mainstream of academic research. Long considered to be an exceptional case, recent scholarship in political science has tended to emphasize the points of comparison between France and other polities. In short, the context of French politics is changing and the study of French politics is changing. French Politics is designed to reflect these developments.

The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance - Issues and Practice

Aims and Scope:

Founded by The Geneva Association in 1973, this prestigious journal still leads its field, publishing papers which both improve the scientific knowledge of the insurance industry and stimulate constructive dialogue between the industry and its economic and social partners. This is a key strategic role for insurance in the modern economy.

Each issue of The Geneva Papers on Risk and Insurance - Issues and Practice is devoted to a relevant topic of contemporary interest. Major topics include: Bank Assurance, Financial Services (regulation and management), New Perspectives in the Welfare State, Developments in the Health Sector, Technological Issues, etc.

Published quarterly, this international journal is essential reading for academics and researchers in insurance and their colleagues in the insurance industry, and other professionals who are searching for a deeper insight into the strategic options for their sector. It bridges the gap between these two groups, highlighting converging zones of interest and helping them to find a common direction.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 1976.
- Advanced online publication - definitive, citable version of papers (complete with DOI) available online ahead of print.
- A Site License provides access to all content published during the supply period. Access is granted to a further rolling four-year archive where available during the supply period only. Archive content not included in the license agreement is available to purchase.

†2008 Journal Citation Report (Thomson Reuters, 2009)
Aims and Scope

The Geneva Risk and Insurance Review aims to publish:

- Authoritative contributions regarding risk, insurance and related areas
- Theoretical papers as well as empirical and/or experimental research for global dissemination
- New innovative ideas in insurance economics

The Journal direction is towards economics in general, focusing on risk and insurance in particular. Although most of the papers published are theoretical, The Geneva Risk and Insurance Review also publishes tests and competing theories in order to expand understanding of insurance economics. The editors are especially interested in new and innovative ideas and see the topic area of ‘risk and insurance’ rather broadly, encouraging papers from related disciplines.

Published twice a year, this international journal endeavours to provide a forum for the exchange of academic findings and views, whilst also supporting and encouraging research for all those in the insurance industry who search for current innovations in their sector concerning risk, uncertainty and insurance.

Aims and Scope:

Higher Education Policy is an international journal for advancing scholarly understanding of the policy process applied to higher education through the publication of original analyses, both theoretical and practice-based, the focus of which may range from case studies of developments in individual institutions to policy making at systems and at national level.

Higher Education Policy has two distinguishing features:

• It encourages contributions that make explicit comparison between systems of higher education.

• It is theme based, involving a common focus or combining articles which individually contribute to an overall topic.

Through this journal the International Association of Universities (IAU) wishes to strengthen the exchange between scholarship and issues of practical administrative concern within the perspective of the disciplines that contribute to the study of this field - anthropology, history, economics, public administration, political science, government, law, sociology, philosophy, psychology, policy analysis and the sociology of organizations.

IMF Staff Papers is the official research journal of the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

Aims and Scope:

The International Monetary Fund has announced that its official research journal, IMF Staff Papers, will be succeeded in mid-2010 by a new significantly-enhanced, peer-reviewed research publication – IMF Economic Review.

IMF Economic Review will be dedicated to publishing peer-reviewed, high-quality, academic research on open-economy macroeconomics. It aspires to publish the leading academic research and authors in the field. Given the unique position of the Fund, this journal will be required reading for everyone interested in international economic policy or in macroeconomics.

IMF Economic Review is now open for submissions, which will be subject to strict peer review. The first issues of IMF Economic Review will consist of specially commissioned contributions from notable figures in the field.

Aims and Scope:

Formerly known as Derivatives Use, Trading & Regulation, this journal's title was changed to Journal of Derivatives & Hedge Funds in 2007.

Launched in 1996, the journal’s strength and reputation has been built on its specific focus; the trading, legal and other derivative issues not covered by the other more mathematically oriented journals. Whilst maintaining this focus, the enormous growth in hedge funds has led to a number of new issues, including: the problems of survivorship bias; performance issues; hedgefund survival; benchmark construction; and techniques for building funds of funds. Journal of Derivatives & Hedge Funds addresses these issues and keeps subscribers informed and up-to-date in this fast-moving market.

Aims and Scope:

Journal of Digital Asset Management is the definitive bi-monthly publication designed specifically for business executives involved in developing, deploying and maintaining DAM systems and those concerned with managing digital assets - and maximizing the contribution of digital assets to strategic business goals.

The Journal combines provocative thought-leadership pieces, which expand and broaden what can be achieved with DAM, with actionable advice and 'lessons learned' from practitioners. Whether you are a new adopter or mature user, the Journal offers invaluable intelligence on the crucial strategic, technological and operational aspects of DAM, reviewing both users' experiences in the form of case studies and what vendors are doing in the current market.

Journal of Digital Asset Management provides a unique forum for all those involved in DAM to present, share and explore new ideas, latest thinking and best practice. Subscribers can thus keep track of the latest developments in the strategy, deployment and technology behind DAM, which makes the journal and its exclusive subscribers' bulletin board an indispensable guide for those developing projects - and careers - within this fast emerging field.

Online Features and Site License Access:

Aims and Scope:

Today’s knowledge management research and practice is disseminated through a wide range of publications. The community is rapidly evolving. KMRP provides a single focus – an outlet for high-quality, peer-reviewed articles on all aspects of managing knowledge, organizational learning, intellectual capital and knowledge economics.

The journal has a particular emphasis on cross disciplinary approaches, and on the mixing of “hard” (e.g. technological) and “soft” (e.g. cultural or motivational) issues. This cross-disciplinary focus enables articles in the journal to address other important tensions in the field of knowledge management, such as those between strategy and operations, people and technology, short-term and long-term needs and the organization and the individual.

Aims and Scope:

Maritime Economics & Logistics (MEL) is a scholarly peer-reviewed publication for academics, practitioners and policy-makers that promotes maritime economics and logistics as a distinct and well-defined branch of both applied economics and international business.

MEL is a key source for peer-reviewed research and policy perspectives of direct relevance to economists, researchers, academics and those in professional practice with an interest in maritime economics, maritime policy, transport economics and applied economics.

Research in maritime economics is changing, most noticeably from the ‘modal’ approach of the past to one focusing on the optimization of global supply networks. The mission of MEL is to map the forefront of this research and thus promote maritime economics and logistics as a distinct and well-defined branch of both applied economics and international business.

Aims and Scope:

postmedieval: a journal of medieval cultural studies is a cross-disciplinary, peer-reviewed journal in medieval studies that aims to bring the medieval and modern into productive critical relation. The journal will work to develop a present-minded medieval studies in which contemporary events, issues, ideas, problems, objects, and texts serve as triggers for critical investigations of the Middle Ages. Further, postmedieval seeks to illuminate the deep historical structures—mental, linguistic, social, cultural, aesthetic, religious, political, sexual, and the like—that underlie contemporary thought and life, and therefore, will also attend to the question of the relation of the medieval to the modern (and vice versa) in different times and places.

The journal demonstrates the important value of medieval studies and the longest possible historical perspectives to the ongoing development of contemporary critical and cultural theories that remain under-historicized and will advocate for and support the continuing development, from any and all disciplinary directions, of historicist, materialist, comparatist, and theoretical approaches to the subjects of the Middle Ages.

Risk Management aims to facilitate the exchange of information and expertise across countries and across disciplines. Its purpose is to generate ideas and promote good practice for those involved in the business of managing risk. All too often assessments of risk are crudely made and the consequences of getting things wrong can be serious, including lost opportunities, loss of business, loss of reputation and even life. This journal examines both the problems and potential solutions.

Book Reviews

- The Handbook of Security: Christopher J. Saladino
- Electronic Crime: Rob D’Ovidio
Aims and Scope:

An accessible journal with a broad, eclectic approach that provides a unique, single source of theoretical work about health and health policy. Social Theory & Health encourages and disseminates innovative contributions to the social theory of health, reviewing global, national and local structures through the lens of health.

Social Theory & Health provides an international scholarly forum for theoretical reflection and debate on contemporary health issues, many of which bear directly on the planning and delivery of services. The journal aims to consolidate, refine and extend theoretically informed work on the role of health in modern societies. Interest in issues of theory and health now informs many academic and practice-oriented disciplines and crosses discipline boundaries.

Aims and Scope:

URBAN DESIGN International is the first truly international network for all of those involved in the multi-disciplinary tasks of urban design and management. In providing a direct forum for the exchange of information and a vehicle for the debate which constantly redefines the scope of urban design, the journal places a primary emphasis on bringing together practice and research. It addresses current issues and aims to make a range of materials accessible to all: from in-depth papers and reviews of projects, to book reviews and comments on previous contributions. Some issues are themed by topic or geographic region.

Readership

URBAN DESIGN International is a scholarly publication with a strong practitioner emphasis. It is relevant for all of those involved in architectural and planning education and practice. It is relevant for urban designers, architects, planners, surveyors and landscape architects and all professionals concerned with urban development and design.

Online Features and Site License Access:

- Online archive available back to 1996.

International Historical Statistics 1750–2005

Brian Mitchell, Fellow, Trinity College, University of Cambridge, UK

Reviews of previous editions of the International Historical Statistics series:

'This excellent reference work will alleviate the difficulty of identifying sources and the often frustrating task of extracting comparable data from disparate origins. Particularly recommended for college and research libraries.' - Library Journal

'Remain[s] the most important general historical source.' - Choice

'Monumental in scale yet well set out and easy to use.' - Social History

The three-volume set of International Historical Statistics allows the full breadth of statistical analysis and comparisons across both time and across the world. It provides key economic and social indicators for the last 255 years, serving as an essential reference source and as an indispensable tool for comparisons.

PALGRAVE CONNECT STATESMAN’S YEARBOOK ARCHIVE

During 2010 the archive of The Statesman’s Yearbook from 1864 to 2003 will be made available online as a Palgrave Connect collection: a wonderful compilation of interesting and useful facts and figures through generations. Offering a unique opportunity to survey changes at the global and individual country level over 140 years, this new collection will make an excellent addition to any library.

Alternatively, you can access the archive via www.statesmansyearbook.com if you have a site license – a unique resource offering monthly updates on the changing political, economic and social landscape as well as the full historical context. The Statesman’s Yearbook Archive will be available as part of site license access to www.statesmansyearbook.com from September 2009.

PALGRAVE CONNECT DICTIONARY OF ECONOMICS ARCHIVE

Past editions of the Dictionary of Economics, including R.H. Inglis Palgrave’s Dictionary of Political Economy (1890s) remain classic reference works in the field. Following demand from economists after the launch of The New Palgrave Dictionary of Economics, second edition, for online access to these important resources, we will be adding them as a collection in Palgrave Connect during 2010.

Alternatively, you will be able to access the archive via www.dictionaryofeconomics.com if you have a site license – a dynamic online resource and a snapshot of the past.
The Palgrave Dictionary of Transnational History
From the Mid-19th Century to the Present Day

Edited by Akira Iriye, Charles Warren Research Professor of American History, Emeritus, Harvard University, USA and Pierre-Yves Saunier, Researcher, Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique, France

‘One of the most significant scholarly projects of the last decade has involved breaking out of the nation-state framework in order to examine influential transnational circuits and interconnections. Akira Iriye and Pierre-Yves Saunier have now edited an indispensable resource for transnational history. By offering a broad array of topics and drawing upon the expertise of over three hundred of the world’s leading scholars, these skillful editors have produced a freshly conceived and authoritative volume that will appeal to libraries and historians worldwide.’ - Professor Emily S. Rosenberg, Department of History, University of California, Irvine, USA

‘With articles written by experts from twenty-five countries and from six continents this dictionary is an impressive and inspiring example of transnational history as a transnational practice. The Editors have done a great job to give this new field in historiography a convincing intellectual status and to open the mind of the next generation to the idea of global entanglements and cultural transfers as the very basis of modernity.’ - Professor Matthias Middell, University of Leipzig, Germany

Written and edited by many of the world’s foremost scholars of transnational history, this Dictionary challenges readers to look at the contemporary world in a new light. Contains over 400 entries on transnational subjects such as food, migration and religion, as well as traditional topics such as nationalism and war.

The Palgrave Encyclopedia of World Economic History
Since 1750

Graham Bannock, Visiting Professor, London Westminster University, UK; Trustee of the Small Enterprise Research Team, an educational charity, and Member of the Academic Council of the Institute of Economic Affairs and R.E Baxter, Co-author of Readings in Economics and co-author, with Graham Bannock, of the Penguin Dictionary of Economics.

‘In the breadth of their entries, in their attention to detail, in their cross-referencing and lists of references, Bannock and Baxter have written a superb encyclopedia that is as much a world history as a world economic history. Academics, students and educated laypersons alike will benefit from having this well presented and well-documented volume on their bookshelf.’- Lawrence H. Officer, Professor of Economics, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA

‘The Palgrave Encyclopedia of Economic History is a godsend to students, graduate students and teachers of Economic History and should encourage many to enter this field.’- Angus Maddison, Emeritus Professor, University of Groningen, The Netherlands

It is generally agreed that in order to understand the world’s economy today, you need to understand its history. The Palgrave Encyclopedia of World Economic History is an easy-to-use resource that provides a useful reference for students and academics alike. Covering topics as diverse as accounting, the Great Depression, electronics, beer, gold and classical and neo-classical economics, the Encyclopedia includes in-depth entries on key events, themes and people that have shaped the modern world and economic thinking.

The detailed indexes, comprehensive cross referencing system and glossary of terms make this a must have resource for all those interested in economics and economic history.

New for 2010 – an interactive online study skills resource for undergraduates

Investment in Study Skills support and learning resources is now recognized to be critical to the success of ALL students, regardless of subject or level. For over a decade Palgrave Macmillan has been the UK's leading publisher in this area. Our Study Skills Handbook has been consistently ranked as the UK's best-selling text in the 'Back to University' bookselling charts and our free online help site, skills4study.com is visited by thousands of students each week.

In 2010 we will launch a major new online Study Skills resource. This follows extensive market testing and consultation with a board of study skills advisors, e-resources librarians and staff from ten Universities across the UK, including Stella Cottrell, Director of Lifelong Learning at the University Leeds and author of The Study Skills Handbook.

skills4studycampus is designed to support the needs of students across ALL departments and subjects and focuses on the four core skills needed for success at university.

- Writing Skills
- Reading and Note-Making
- Referencing and Plagiarism
- Critical Thinking Skills

Each module includes a range of interactive materials, designed to support diverse needs, abilities and learning styles – from school leavers to mature students or students for whom English is a second language. These include diagnostic tests, extensive activities and assessment exercises and a personalized learning journal for each student. Students can also set their own personal tags and download practical support materials such as checklists and templates.

skills4studycampus is designed to be used either for class-based teaching, blended learning or as a self-study resource. Tutors can enrol their students, set assignments and track individual progress and results. Alternatively students can dip in and out of individual modules for quick reference or progress independently through the course on a self-study basis, accessing via the University network, in the library, study skills centre or at home.

Librarians or E-learning Resources staff will have access to usage statistics and support materials via a dedicated administrator interface.

Plagiarism: An introduction

Drawing on other people's work is a normal and proper academic discipline as long as you openly acknowledge your sources and supply full references for them.

Plagiarism, in contrast, is the act of presenting the work or ideas of another as one's own, without acknowledging the source of one's information or inspiration. This is not quite as simple a matter as it might seem: plagiarism is not always deliberate, and students accused of plagiarism are often surprised to find that they have quite unintentionally broken the rules. While plagiarism is wrong, however, it is vital that you are clear about the distinction between using properly referenced sources and plagiarising other people's work.

This section includes exercises and feedback to help you become familiar with different ways of using academic sources without plagiarising them. It explains:

- what is meant by 'plagiarism'
- how to draw on other people's work without plagiarising it
- how to recognise plagiarism
- how to collaborate with other students without plagiarising one another's work
